A long, long time ago in a land far, far away, there was a deep and dark cave in the mountains. In the cave was a beautiful golden crown. It was said that whoever brought the crown out of the cave would rule the land. But no one had been able to take it out of the cave, because a huge and terrible dragon lived in the cave.

The Prince was presented with another cat. This one was a fluffy female, soft and cuddly. Do you think this pleased the Prince? "This creature is boring," he sighed. So he dressed the cat up as a monkey. He slipped a long curly tail on it and was about to put gloves on the cat's paws.

"What have you been doing while I was away? Just look at you! You're not fit!" roared Captain Charlie. He decided to start right away with an aerobics class. "Wiggle your hips, bend your knees, Raise your arms, higher please! Stretch your legs, jump on the spot. Touch your toes, that's the shot!"

When Walter the Weather Man first started predicting the weather, he was very scientific. e measured the temperature, the rainfall and the wind speed and direction. He drew accurate graphs and weather charts. Although he tried hard, he was not always right. In fact, his first week as Channel 3's weather forecaster was a disaster!

The Curiosity rover is the size of a car. It is equipped with many cameras and other equipment for conducting experiments. It can even shoot lasers at rocks to turn them into gas to find out what the rock is made of. The Curiosity rover has a built-in power source. It can produce electricity to run the vehicle for up to fourteen years!
